NOTIFICATION

Addendum

The following communication, received on 2 February 2026, is being circulated at the request of the Delegation of Indonesia.

Regulation of Indonesian National Food and Drug Agency Number 13 of 2019 on Maximum Limits of Microbial Contamination on Processed Food

The maximum limits of microbial contaminants in processed foods are regulated under Regulation of the Indonesian FDA No. 13 of 2019 on the Maximum Limit of Microbial Contaminants in Processed Foods. This draft amendment has been developed due to advancements in science and technology, the emergence of new types of processed foods for which microbiological criteria have not yet been established, and the need to address implementation challenges of the existing regulation, including issues related to the application of microbiological criteria for certain commodities.

The amendment to the regulation is limited to the following four food categories:

1. 06.4.3 Pre-cooked pasta and noodles and similar products, specifically ready-to-eat processed flour/starch-based foods;
2. 08.3.2 Meat, poultry meat, and game meat, comminuted and heat-treated, specifically sausages and meatballs subjected to pasteurization;
3. 14.1.4.3 Concentrates (liquid or solid) for flavoured water-based beverages, specifically flavoured powdered beverages containing milk or milk products, creamers, or chocolate;
4. 14.1.5 Coffee, coffee substitutes, tea, herbal infusions, and hot cereal- and grain-based beverages, excluding cocoa, specifically dry tea, powdered tea, and tea bags (including black tea, green tea, white tea, oolong tea, and scented/flavoured tea).
